The Queen Creek/San Tan Valley Independent is having a birthday party of its own: This year marks our 11th year of publishing the only local newspaper devoted to serving Queen Creek and its citizens.

Each week residents of Queen Creek can count on the Independent to bring them the best coverage of their hometown news: from government and schools to upcoming events, neighborhood happenings and people.

For advertisers looking to reach Queen Creek and the surrounding San Tan area, our audited home delivery and affordable advertising rates combine to pack a one-two punch in terms of reach and results. As part of a larger suburban group of community newspapers, our advertising consultants can even help your business reach other areas of the Valley.

And if you’re looking for added news, visit queencreekindependent.com for up-to-date, 24/7 breaking news, headlines and upcoming events.

Our digital site is also where you’ll find the Valley’s most popular FREE classifieds site where you can receive up to 400 words and 4 photos for 4 weeks (and for a nominal fee, you can have your ad appear in the Queen Creek Independent classifieds!).

Community service – and providing citizens with an outlet to exercise their First Amendment rights – is the driving force behind what we do. Thomas Jefferson once said, “A good community newspaper is a community talking to itself.” This is YOUR newspaper, Queen Creek, and we would like to hear from you.

Feel free to contact News Editor Wendy Miller with your suggestions on how we can improve your hometown newspaper.
